

FITTINGLY OBSERVED

Armistice Day was marked by the dedication of a memorial this morning in the State of Maine Park at Kittery. The exercises were along the line of what the day really meant. It was rather a dedication of a memorial to peace rather than war and the speakers all talked on the great national and world desire for permanent peace among all the people. It was a gathering of men and women from all walks of life in the great Pine Tree State. It is such affairs as these that will finally bring about the all-expectant time—the true desire of the heart and soul of the world for everlasting peace and the triumph of the superiority of the Brotherhood of Man. The citizens of New Hampshire join with Maine in the day's observance.

(By Associated Press)
Cincinnati, O., Nov. 11—Surrounded by a threatening crowd that gathered from miles around, Mayor Pugh of North College Hill, a suburb of Cincinnati and four liquor court deputies were rescued last night by Cincinnati police and Chevrolet officers after having been marooned in the town hall of the latter city for four hours. The demonstration started when the mayor and his deputies appeared for trial before Magistrate Williams on charges of assault and battery and pointing firearms, preferred by Mrs. Henry Smith of Dent whose home they raided in search of liquor several days ago.

Impressive Exercises Held at Kittery This Morning—Gov. Percival P. Baxter of Maine Delivers Principal Address Before Big Crowd of Interested People

Today at 11 a. m. the anniversary of the signing of the Armistice which ended the World War, Maine dedicated at Kittery a Memorial to the soldiers, sailors and marines of her state who participated in conflict. This memorial stands in a park at the bridge entrance and was erected by the Smith Granite Co. of Westbury, R. I. It is made of blue-white Westerly granite standing on a platform 48 feet by 22 feet. The ends of the platform are enclosed by semi-circles with benches and entrance at both sides. Peace is the dominant theme of the design—Peace emerging from the horrors of war—and when the tablet is in place, it will, according to the members of the committee, be something of which every citizen of Maine will be proud.

The bronze bas-relief is nine feet in height and about eleven feet in length, and the monument will be of sufficient height to offer the needed contrast.

It bears the following inscription: "This tribute is erected by the State of Maine in honor of her citizens who served in the World War." The sculptress is Miss Baska Paiff of Boston. Long before the appointed hour for the opening of the exercises people of high, civic and military life began to arrive in Kittery. Besides Governor Baxter former Governors William T. Cobb of Rockland, Carl E. Milliken of Portland, Frederick W. Plaisted of Augusta, U. S. Senator Bert J. Fernald of Portland, United States Senator Hale of Portland, Representatives Carroll L. Beedy of Portland, Wallace H. Waite of Lewiston, John Nelson of Augusta and Ira G. Hershey of Houlton, Charles F. Tibbets of Augusta. The following noted people were invited and most of them attended the exercises and banquet: Mrs. Addie Ladd of Fairfield, representing the Woman's Relief Corps; Albert A. Greenlaw of Augusta; Edward S. Anthony of Portland; Percy H. Ford of Sanford and John G. Towne of Waterville, past commanders of the American Legion; Mrs. Hazel Conary of Norway representing the Legion Auxiliary; George Pond of Bangor, representing the Sons of Veterans; D. E. Dismukes, commanding officer of the Kittery navy yard; Col. Edgar A. Day, commanding the Fifth Infantry, Portland; John M. Bartlett, assistant postmaster general; Governor Fred H. Brown of New Hampshire; Walter H. Morris of Portland, W. A. Grover of Portsmouth, and Dr. A. L. Waddell of New York City, representing the United States Engineers; Theodore Olsen, department commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; Arthur G. Rotch of Boston, William H. Harris of Boston, Franklin R. Chesley of Saco, and Franklin C. Payson of Portland, representing the American Red Cross.

The programme for the dedicatory exercises was as follows: Address Gov. Percival P. Baxter, Maine Address Frank G. Farrington, Augusta president of the Maine senate. Address, Col. Albert Bellevue of Rumford, commander of the American Legion in Maine. Address, Gen. Albert A. Greenlaw, representing the soldiers and sailors. Music by band at Portsmouth navy yard. This memorial to Maine's soldiers and sailors was made possible by the Legislature of two years ago, which granted an appropriation for the purpose, and Governor Baxter is chairman of the general memorial committee, while Col. The banquet, attended by nearly five hundred people, was held in the navy yard reading room. The following excellent menu was prepared and served by Caterer Whittemore of Boston:

Grape Fruit with Cherries
Roast Turkey Cranberry Sauce
Mashed Potatoes Virginia Baked Ham
Escalloped Oysters

Celery Olives Radishes
String Beans Sauce
Banana Fritters

There was no speaking during the banquet.

For the benefit of the people who attended the exercises and banquet and later visited the navy yard, Capt. D. E. Dismukes, Commandant, directed that practically the same program be carried out as on Navy Day and many of the guests took the opportunity to look over the reservation being escorted by officers assigned to that duty.

The address of Governor Baxter was as follows:

Ladies and Gentlemen:

I welcome you as guests of the State of Maine. It is fitting that the United States and our sister State of New Hampshire join with us in these exercises. To the veterans of three wars I extend a special greeting. I also am glad to have with us the officers of many of the patriotic societies of our State, and representatives of the Legislative and Judicial branches of our government.

This day is one long-to-be-remembered in our history. For the first time in the 165 years of our statehood, we are erecting a state memorial. It is the State's only tribute to her "Sailors and Soldiers." This bridge, the principal gateway into Maine, and this memorial ever will remind all who enter our State that Maine does not forget the sacrifices of her loyal sons, and will cause those who leave our borders to carry with them a recollection of Maine's loyalty to those who served in her time of need.

Memorial Park

In planning for this memorial we have sought to build something dignified and striking, on a broad scale with suitable setting; something worthy of our State's noblest traditions. This area of land, approximately 600 feet long by 200 feet wide, was purchased by order of the Governor and Council and has been designated by them as the location for this memorial.

It was suggested that this land be used for commercial and advertising purposes and that a revenue be derived from it. The Councilors and myself, however, were unanimously opposed to such a plan and we have ordered that this park shall form an integral part of the memorial itself and shall be used for no other purpose. It is for the veterans and their descendants hereafter to insist upon this. It is theirs for all time and ever should be kept sacred and inviolate.

The Councilors entrusted me with the details of laying out this park and I accepted the responsibility. A few months ago this area was rough and unsightly; it was littered with "slag" and rubbish. Gradually we have removed the buildings, cleared away the debris, raked the land into shape, planted trees and laid out walks. Next spring we plan to construct a background of lilacs and evergreens about the memorial, and the Highway Commission will complete the concrete road around the park. These improvements will make it one of the most beautiful spots in Maine. At the peak of the land nearest the bridge is to be erected a metal flagpole on a granite base, and I want both the United States and the State of Maine flags always to fly from it. This will emphasize it as a state memorial.

Corner Stone and Cost
We are here today to dedicate this memorial and to lay a corner stone in which is to be placed a copper box, containing a history of this bridge and other records that some centuries hence may prove of interest to those who open it.

The cost of the memorial will be paid out of an unexpended balance of the original bridge appropriation, for by prudent management enough remains to take care of this expense.

Bronze Statuary
On this granite base above the inscription "The State of Maine to Her Sailors and Soldiers," there is to be a massive granite panel thirteen feet wide by nine feet high. On this panel will be erected a bronze statuary tablet, eleven feet wide by eight feet high, which will forcefully portray the spirit of service, and the sacrifice and waste of war. This will be completed in the Spring of 1925 and at that time will be fastened to the panel without further ceremony.

Armistice Day One of Peace
Armistice Day by its name denotes peace; it is not set apart as an occasion for the glorification of war but for the commemoration of the day when fighting stopped and peace reigned. Shall any of us ever forget the sigh of relief that went up the world over when in the early morning of that first November 11, the news came that a truce had been signed and the war ended. On that day people were overcome by a conflict of emotions. Some went wild with delight and lost control of themselves in joyous outbreaks. Others, more thoughtful, fell upon their knees, thanked God for the relief that at last had come, and prayed that war never again might visit the earth. In every heart there was a deep seated feeling that a new and better world would emerge from the chaos; a world in which envy, hate and greed no longer would rule in the seats of power. Bleeding, sorrowing Nations at once began to bind up their wounds and wipe away their tears, but today the scars still are plainly visible and all eyes are not yet dry.

A New Day Comes
Six years have passed; it is ten years since war began. Progress has been slow and the path to better things has been beset with pitfalls. Many who hoped for the new day have lost heart and given up in despair. The forces of evil and reaction too often have prevailed. Notwithstanding this, the pessimistic observer today must admit that the clouds are clearing, for already the rays of the sunshine of better days are piercing through them.

The best minds in the nations are at work to solve the post war problems. The errors of the past are understood, and will be avoided in the future. All the forces of distrust and suspicion cannot prevail against the spirit of hope and determination that has taken firm root in the minds of the people of all countries. Throughout history war has been glorified, largely because those who profited by it have controlled the destinies, even the thoughts of peoples. The followers of the Prince of Peace have had but slight influence in the halls of state, but slight that influence has been, it has proven to be the leaven that ultimately is to leaven the whole lump.

People Aroused.

The peoples of the world at last are aroused. Slowly, as they begin to feel their power, they are emerging from their ignorance. They now see that since the beginning of time they have been exploited for selfish ends, their property wasted and their lives sacrificed to build up and maintain great dynasties and great selfish interests. They are realizing more keenly than ever that they have been used as mere pawns upon the chessboard of life; mere tools to serve and enrich those who have lived upon them. One of the greatest military men of history, Frederick the Great, said, "If my soldiers would really think, not one of them would remain in the ranks."

Few today are bold enough to extol war and preach its blessings. The movement for peace extends into every corner of the globe. It knows no sect, no race, no creed, no national boundaries, and those irreconcilable who stand in its way are destined to be swept aside and forgotten.

History Has Emphasized War.
The history of the future will be one of peace and its accomplishments. As taught our children, history from the days of Greece and Rome until modern times is nothing but a recital of war. Little or no mention is ever made of the world's progress in science, politics and art, or of the great movements that have underlain and been responsible for the advancement of civilization. In the text-books placed before our children war and nothing but war, has been and still is the dominating theme. History needs to be rewritten and movements and events other than war should be given their proper place in it.

To Service and Sacrifice.

In dedicating this memorial to the sons of Maine, we dedicate it to their services and to their sacrifices, to their selflessness and to their loyalty, and in doing so protest against the war system that called for and required them. We are resolved to do all within our power to prevent war's repetition.

I would not dare be hopeful enough to say there will be no more war, for human passions and greed have not yet been conquered, nor have they been driven from the world. Nevertheless every year of peace brings about a better and more tolerant understanding among nations, and thus reduces the chances of armed conflict.

The radio, the aeroplane, the cable, the voyage of the ZR-3, all contribute toward peaceful international relations. As I stood in my window in Boston a short time ago and saw that huge Zeppelin moving steadily and swiftly across the deep blue of the night sky with the moon shining full upon her, I thought of her as a great white Spirit of Peace coming across the sea from the land of a former enemy as a token of better times, a pledge of friendship for the years to come. A few evenings later an audience of 6000 Americans gathered to greet the commander of that ship and stood at attention while the band played "Deutschland Uber Alles."

War Less Probable.

From a wholly materialistic point of view war is fast becoming less probable, because more frightful. As science devises new methods of destruction, from the air above to the depths of the sea beneath, new gas, new slaughtering devices, new horrors, even war makers and war profiteers will hesitate before again plunging the world into conflict. They will not dare play the war games of old; for their new toys will be vastly more destructive than man ever before dreamed. These discoveries of themselves are preventatives of war. Their very existence serves to make designing men and aggressive nations hesitate before risking the chance of their own complete annihilation. Another conflict well might result in the extermination of a large portion of the human race. Once these forces are put into motion no man can tell where the end will be.

All the old-time chivalry has gone from modern warfare. Today war is as sordid as it is bloody, as cruel as it is unnecessary. As the commander of the Canadian troops, Sir Arthur Currie, recently said, "There is no glory in war, either in its conduct or method. War is not a means of solving international disputes or bringing peace to a troubled world." If nations again go to war, treaties will prove but "scraps of paper." Solemn covenants against the use of submarines, airplanes and gas will be valueless. Plagues, poisons and disease will be recognized as lawful and will be freely used by the contending nations. Nothing, not even a solemn compact, will prevent a nation in extremis from resorting to anything to save itself from annihilation. Any other course would be national suicide.

International Standards.

Practical idealists, and I class myself as such, do not expect a new heaven and a new earth. They however, recognize that the same moral standards that govern the settlement of disputes between individuals should govern the settlement of international disputes. They hold that the new era can come only through gradual and regular processes of better international understanding and less national selfishness. Premier Herriot of France says that international affairs must be conducted "with the same regard for honesty and morality as private affairs." With this principle as a foundation, the pioneer work of the past that aimed to remove the causes of war and promote peace is sure to bear fruit in the days to come.

Education for Peace.

There are large and influential groups of earnest men and women who are doing much for world peace. Last year in San Francisco sixty-two nations were represented in a great conference of educators who solemnly and unanimously resolved to do all in their power to "cultivate international good will and educate children in the ways of peace." The influence of that gathering will be felt the world over, and it is well for us to recall that an official of the State of Maine, our Commissioner of Education, Dr. Augustus O. Thomas, was its distinguished president.

True patriotism and a proper pride in one's own land are by no means inconsistent with a broad and tolerant sympathy with the problems of other nations. The highest interests of all is the end to be desired. When our children are taught the ridiculousness of war and the beautiful and reasonableness of peace, that all the services and to their sacrifices, to their selflessness and to their loyalty, and in doing so protest against the war system that called for and required them. We are resolved to do all within our power to prevent war's repetition.

I would not dare be hopeful enough to say there will be no more war, for human passions and greed have not yet been conquered, nor have they been driven from the world. Their very existence serves to make designing men and aggressive nations hesitate before risking the chance of their own complete annihilation. Another conflict well might result in the extermination of a large portion of the human race. Once these forces are put into motion no man can tell where the end will be.

Preparedness.

We hear much about "preparedness" for war, and special "days" are being observed annually to interest our citizens in building up a great system of national "defense." Those accustomed to think in terms of war constantly are warning us against the possible attack of hostile forces. Many thoughtful people are impressed by such statements and approve such days. Though differing from them in no way question their motives or patriotism. Still others whose motives are not as free from question and who profit from armament, play upon the fears of peacefully inclined citizens. In my opinion such special days are likely to cause distrust of our motives in the minds of our neighbors, and principally for that reason I question the wisdom of their observance. When the proper time arrives I would prefer to see a general "Demobilization Day" in which all the world would join.

It will not be many years before great military establishments will find themselves outlived by public sentiment. This is inevitable, once the people understand. It has been well said that "wars are the games of old men for which youth pays the price." The fight has not been won, for many of these same "old men" still control the channels through which public sentiment flows and seek to move the destinies of the world from within their newspaper offices and from behind their counting tables. When the youth of all countries refuse to fight the battles of these instigators and profiteers of war real progress will have been made.

There are those who conscientiously advocate peace through preparedness for war. Again, I do not question their loyalty or motives. History, however, as I read it, shows that too often preparedness has promoted war by building up an arrogant spirit that sooner or later sought expression through aggressive action. Moreover those who have derived great profit through preparedness often have been the ones to derive even greater profit through war. A distinguished British General, Sir Frederic Maurice, recently said: "I went into the British Army believing that if you want peace you must prepare for war. I now believe that if you prepare for war you will get war." At best preparedness is playing with fire, an uncertain and dangerous method of preserving peace.

A Self-Respecting Peace Program.

I would not have this nation disarm, nor in the present unsettled state of the world would I leave my country defenseless. No more would I have her swagger about with drawn sword and proclaim herself the greatest power in the world.

The power of the churches is making itself felt in the great Peace movement. It is strange that Christian ministers often have been slow and reluctant to begin an active, aggressive crusade against war. One would have expected that long since every pulpit in the civilized world would have thundered out against the wickedness and crime of war. Instead, clergymen of many denominations within recent years have asked God's blessings on the armies of kings and emperors as they went forth to kill and to conquer for power and position. The "men of the cloth" often have played an active part in war by justifying it and by preaching the gospel of salvation by the sword. Today however, some of the most active of the great national church organizations have formed an alliance and are "determined" to outlaw the whole war system." These militant pacifists rightly assert that "the glorification of war must end" and that "the cause of peace is dearer than party allegiance." The churches joining hands with the teachers, form an alliance that is destined to prove irresistible, an alliance that ultimately must win.

Peace Movement Abroad.

In countries beyond our borders the peace movement is perhaps even stronger than here at home, for the sufferings and sacrifices of our Allies, and our enemies were far greater than ours. Among the nations of Europe it has a membership of over ten million former service men. Moreover the millions of the laboring classes are behind it and many a country would face revolution if its leaders perpetrated another conflict. Great foreign generals do not hesitate to say that "only general disarmament can save the world" and they urge a "strike against war." In this vast movement America surely will do her part.

League of Nations and World Court.

The League of Nations is a great international movement the purpose of which is to bring nations into closer and more friendly relations and thus lessen the possibility of conflict. Although our country has not yet become an official member, we are watching its work with deep concern, and when the proper time comes can be depended upon to carry our share of the burden. Another institution that is destined to render great service to humanity is the World Court. It will provide a lawful and peaceful method for the settlement of disputes between nations. The forces behind these movements are mounting in strength and numbers with each passing year. Certainly education and preparedness for peace are well under way, and people the world over are aroused.

As a distinct contribution toward world peace, would it not be advisable for our country to have a cabinet officer of equal rank with his associates, whose sole duty would be to promote better understandings? We have Secretaries of War and of the Navy. Why not have one official whose duty it is to prevent war, as well as two to prosecute it?

War to End War.

This memorial as I have said, is not erected as a glorification of war, it is in protest against it. It is a memorial to service and sacrifice, a tribute to those who, caught in the meshes of world unrest and selfishness, proved themselves unselfish enough to risk their all in the belief that at last had come a "war to end war." That was the call that went ringing across this continent. It stirred the emotions of both old and young, and brought forth lives and treasure for a great cause. The future will show that that call was not in vain.

For six years progress has halted; a step forward often has been followed by two backward, but more often has the reverse been true. It is most appropriate that just at this time, when world affairs seem brighter than at any moment since 1914, that the State of Maine should dedicate a memorial to the hope that Maine's sons never again will be called to war, and that before long Peace may reign supreme.

Let us all here today, soldiers, sailors, clergymen, jurists, politicians and citizens, dedicate ourselves to the greatest cause of all causes, Peace and Good Will among the nations.

Address of General Albert Greenlaw

A page pauses today to turn back the pages of time to a morning six years ago when suddenly the clamor of conflict ceased and a strange silence fell as a benediction upon bloody battlefields where weary men were grappled in the gigantic struggle of death. The peoples of many nations that day lifted up their voices in joyous thanksgiving. Millions of hearts thrilled anew to a word which seemed to have lost its meaning on the lips of even the most hopeful—the magical word, peace. Peace, the ending of the most sanguinary of all time, Peace, the triumph of an ideal for which men and women have ventured their lives and sacrificed their all down through the ages. Peace, a prayer answered—a world saved. A universal longing for the wiping out apparently forever of all wars. The hope was strengthened by the very fact that the horrors through which the world had passed were more severe than humanity had ever dreamed. Belief was born in victory that it could not happen again. The soldiers of America fought the good fight for America and kept the faith. America will keep faith for their soldiers, but the war for America did not end with the war against Germany. There is much left for the are not possessed by any single nation, that it is our duty to lead in better international understanding and that our flag is the symbol of peace rather than that of war, we can expect the next generation to be worthy to be called true Americans.

The Churches for Peace.

The power of the churches is making itself felt in the great Peace movement. It is strange that Christian ministers often have been slow and reluctant to begin an active, aggressive crusade against war. The peoples of many nations that day lifted up their voices in joyous thanksgiving. Millions of hearts thrilled anew to a word which seemed to have lost its meaning on the lips of even the most hopeful—the magical word, peace. Peace, the ending of the most sanguinary of all time, Peace, the triumph of an ideal for which men and women have ventured their lives and sacrificed their all down through the ages. Peace, a prayer answered—a world saved. A universal longing for the wiping out apparently forever of all wars. The hope was strengthened by the very fact that the horrors through which the world had passed were more severe than humanity had ever dreamed. Belief was born in victory that it could not happen again. The soldiers of America fought the good fight for America and kept the faith. America will keep faith for their soldiers, but the war for America did not end with the war against Germany. There is much left for the or on earth. I would train our youth to be self-reliant and would instruct them in the art of self-defense. I would live strictly up to the letter and spirit of our international reduction of armament treaties, no more, no less, and would work for further mutual reduction. I would have our country remain tolerant in spirit and, while taking such defensive precautions as are reasonably necessary, would not emphasize or call the attention of others to them. I would cultivate a spirit of good will and of friendship for other nations, urge the removal of all points of friction and assume no superiority of race or color. All the while I would pronounce an anathema against war and a curse on those who foster it by propaganda, secret or open.

In a broad sense these are the principles of a "Pacifist," in the proper sense of the word, and no loyal American who believes in them need be ashamed to be called by that much abused title.

Our Army and Navy.

No one more than myself recognizes the splendid services rendered this country, both in peace and in war, by our army and navy. Together they constitute the strong right arm of our government, and have been and are a force for good. In times of peace they render distinguished service in science, and the arts, exploration and discovery, in engineering and in countless other phases of useful activity. These branches of our government arouse the admiration and gratitude of all good citizens. In the present state of the world they are an essential part of our governmental machinery, and deserve our cordial and united support. I number among my friends many officers of both services and never have known one unworthy to wear the uniform of our country. In expressing abhorrence of war, I believe I am voicing the overwhelming sentiment of almost every military and naval man in this land.

League of Nations and World Court.

The League of Nations is a great international movement the purpose of which is to bring nations into closer and more friendly relations and thus lessen the possibility of conflict. Although our country has not yet become an official member, we are watching its work with deep concern, and when the proper time comes can be depended upon to carry our share of the burden. Another institution that is destined to render great service to humanity is the World Court. It will provide a lawful and peaceful method for the settlement of disputes between nations. The forces behind these movements are mounting in strength and numbers with each passing year. Certainly education and preparedness for peace are well under way, and people the world over are aroused.

As a distinct contribution toward world peace, would it not be advisable for our country to have a cabinet officer of equal rank with his associates, whose sole duty would be to promote better understandings? We have Secretaries of War and of the Navy. Why not have one official whose duty it is to prevent war, as well as two to prosecute it?

War to End War.

This memorial as I have said, is not erected as a glorification of war, it is in protest against it. It is a memorial to service and sacrifice, a tribute to those who, caught in the meshes of world unrest and selfishness, proved themselves unselfish enough to risk their all in the belief that at last had come a "war to end war." That was the call that went ringing across this continent. It stirred the emotions of both old and young, and brought forth lives and treasure for a great cause. The future will show that that call was not in vain.

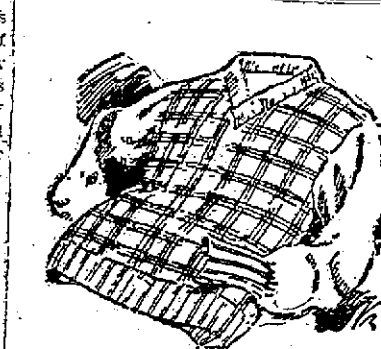

For six years progress has halted; a step forward often has been followed by two backward, but more often has the reverse been true. It is most appropriate that just at this time, when world affairs seem brighter than at any moment since 1914, that the State of Maine should dedicate a memorial to the hope that Maine's sons never again will be called to war, and that before long Peace may reign supreme.

Let us all here today, soldiers, sailors, clergymen, jurists, politicians and citizens, dedicate ourselves to the greatest cause of all causes, Peace and Good Will among the nations.

Address of General Albert Greenlaw

A page pauses today to turn back the pages of time to a morning six years ago when suddenly the clamor of conflict ceased and a strange silence fell as a benediction upon bloody battlefields where weary men were grappled in the gigantic struggle of death. The peoples of many nations that day lifted up their voices in joyous thanksgiving. Millions of hearts thrilled anew to a word which seemed to have lost its meaning on the lips of even the most hopeful—the magical word, peace. Peace, the ending of the most sanguinary of all time, Peace, the triumph of an ideal for which men and women have ventured their lives and sacrificed their all down through the ages. What Sort of Sweater?
Some microscopic minds make no end of consequence about inconsequential subjects, such as how many liver pads are worn in Patagonia; where does Sunday spend Monday and what becomes of your lap when you stand up. It is the same type of man who purses lips, contracts eyebrows, points a solemn forefinger and demands to know whether the coat-style sweater or the pull-over, or the V-neck or the round-neck, or the plain or the plaid is the only correct thing to wear. The answer is, "Yes!" Seriously, however, fashion does not concern itself with these things. They are matters of particular preference and individual becomingness, not of fixed rule.

Put on any sort of sweater that you look well in, and you practice the fundamental rule of smartness which is—make the most of your gifts and the least of your shortcomings. Don't become a slave to style for style's sake. Don't confuse mere fashion with correct dress. The two are allied, but not identical. Choose all your clothes with an eye to what favors and flatters you as an individual. Adopt the things which are suited to your figure and type. Avoid the things which are better suited to somebody else. No man, unless so extraordinarily endowed physically, that he is a composite of a Romeo and an Apollo—which no sensible person wants to be—can wear every style pleasingly and effectively. Selective discrimination, and nothing else, makes some of us better-dressed than others.

The knitted sweater, reproduced here, is one of the many types to be had this season—with round necks, V-necks or even square necks; with plaid bodies and plain sleeves or with both of the same pattern; with solid-shade necks or with necks, sleeves and bottom edges embellished with bold stripes in college, club or regimental colors.

So all-important has the once humble sweater become as a feature of outdoor and sporting dress, that it is not infrequent for a well-dressed man to have half-a-dozen of them to accompany different outfits.

BITS OF SPORT OF LOCAL INTEREST

The High school has two more games to play in its football schedule and if it does not show more ability in tight places than in the past three games will be defeated in both. Next Saturday the team goes to Concord to play Concord High, and while Concord has no world beater in its team, they will probably win. Biddeford is playing a fine game this season and the locals will have them for their closing game at home. As a matter of fact Portsmouth High should have won every game played, for in every game they have outplayed the visiting team only to throw the game away by some error of judgment. With Rochester High when they had the game well sewed up a passion for throwing forward passes when there was no need for it, brought about their downfall. With Newburyport it was this same desire to shoot the forwards that lost the game. In last Saturday's game the locals should have scored at least four times, but each time when a leader was needed there was none on the field. As a matter of fact the real trouble with the team is the lack of a quarterback who will keep cool when they are within scoring distance and play a rushing game, especially when they are gaining. McCarthy, while he is a very valuable man in the backfield and would make an ideal halfback, is no quarterback. Fullam would make a far better quarterback than any man in the backfield, for he has a good football head and refuses to get rattled.

It has been an unfortunate season for the school. Everybody had a right to expect that the team would win every game, for it is without question the best squad that has ever represented the school, and the writer can go back 20 years in making this statement. The line is worthy of any High school in New England and the backfield material is good. There is a wealth of all kinds of material and some of it has not got into a game. Take J. Clark, who went in for Captain Robinson on Saturday. He played a whale of a game and, while probably not as aggressive and finished as Robinson, who is one of the best tackles the school has had for years, he is a good player.

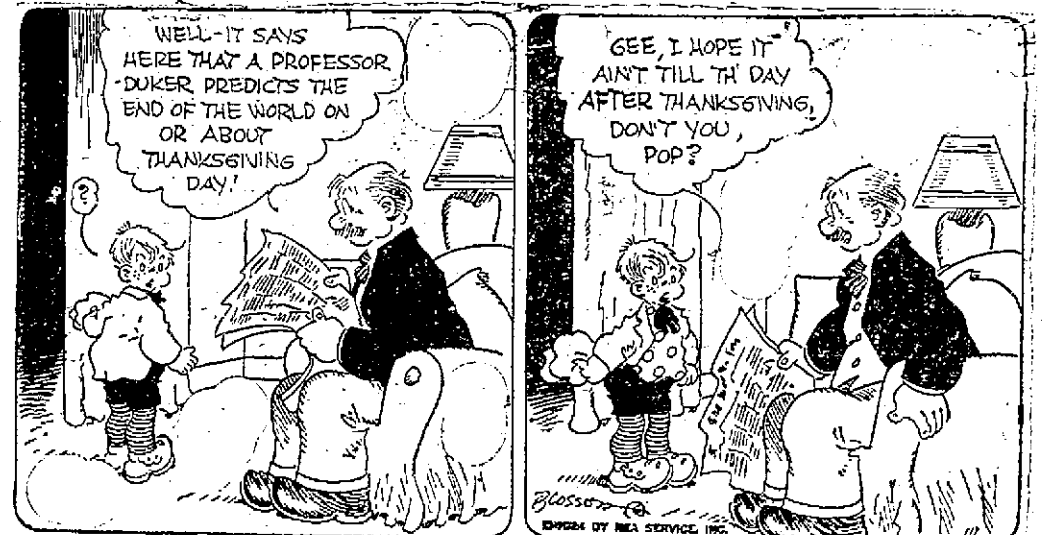

The football upsets were many on Saturday. The greatest of these probably was Harvard but there were les-

RED CROSS PLANS
SOLDIER RELIEF

Washington, Nov. 10—More than 37 per cent of a $4,674,750 budget the American Red Cross has provided for the fiscal year which will close next June 30, will be expended for services on behalf of disabled former service men and their dependents. This is exclusive of funds which will be used for a similar purpose by individual chapters in nearly 3000 communities, said a statement of the organization issued today.

While $300,000 tentatively is set aside for disaster relief, it was explained today by John Barton Payne, Red Cross executive head, that this figure may prove inadequate as was the case last year, when 192 disasters made necessary the expenditure of $737,000 in Red Cross funds.

Under the Maine law at present the operation of a motor vehicle while intoxicated is a felony, and the municipal courts no longer have jurisdiction.

STANDARDIZING IS RADIO AIM

Washington.—An organized effort has been begun for the standardization of radio apparatus and some progress has been made in this direction. The Bureau of Standards has been participating in this work through representation on the various committees and boards which are engaged in the several phases of the movement.

A sectional committee on standardization of apparatus and nomenclature has been organized by the American Engineering Standards Committee. It has 26 members, representing various producing, consuming and distributing and general radio interests. Its technical work will be carried on by subcommittees on a number of different subjects, including transmitting and receiving sets and installations, power supply, etc. In addition to this work, the Interdepartmental Radio Advisory Committee, gives attention to the standardization of radio equipment for Government use through the work of its subcommittee on technical problems.

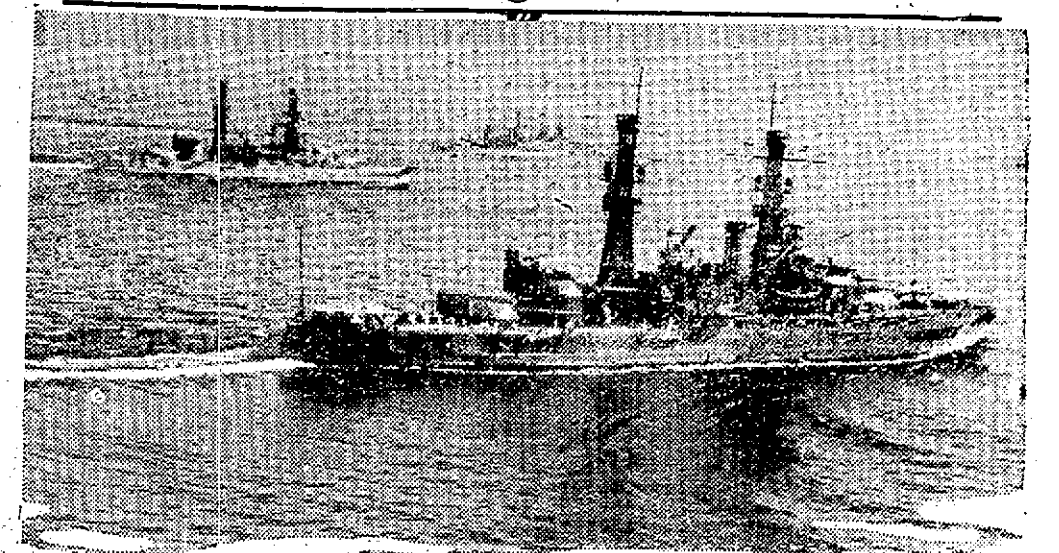

The standardization of the frequency of radio waves has assumed a new importance with the increase of public interest in radio and the necessity of avoiding interference between radio stations operating on different frequencies. One of the methods used by the Bureau of Standards in such standardization is the accurate measurement of the length of very short waves on a system of parallel wires.

Ocean's Secrets

Down into the depths of the ocean inquisitive science is now grappling for data to enhance man's knowledge of conditions around him. He knows much of the history of the surface of this old planet. He has even learned much of the stars, though his store of knowledge there is limited. But in the depths of the ocean lie secrets that have gone unknown since time immemorial, secrets within a few feet of man's hand as compared with the distance of the stars, and yet how little he really knows about it.

The Sargasso sea, that romantic ocean of floating seaweed storied by pirates and sung by poets of the age of pieces of eight will be explored by a party from the New York Zoological Society. Several millionaires have lent their financial assistance to the scheme. A special ship has been prepared for the task of sounding out the greatest depths and catching the myriad of water species which abound in what scientists think the most prolific breeding ground for marine life.

Persons lacking that inherent love for romance which seems akin to human life itself perhaps will scoff at the expenditure of large sums of money merely to "catch new fish." Persons laughed when Columbus sought funds to embark, as it was thought to sail to the edge of the square world. And many laughed at the recent proposition that a hole twelve miles deep be dug to search for new minerals and azoic strata. There are always scoffers at something new, but it is expeditions such as that now embarked for the Sargasso Sea that increase the store of man's knowledge and give the world some idea of that which came before.

Convicts and Education

The average criminal, despite contentions to the contrary, is not a college graduate or necessarily a man of more than average intelligence.

Judge Alfred J. Talley of New York, in a recent statement, declared that there were enough college graduates in American prisons today to "man the faculty of all the colleges." This statement has been taken exception to by Warden Lewis E. Lawes of Sing Sing prison, a close student of criminal affairs, who says that in the institution of which he is the head, but five convicts out of a total of 1,388 are college graduates.

In a sense, Warden Lewis' statement is a defense not alone of the college man, but also of the so-called "super-intellectuals." Super-intelligence does not necessarily lead to criminal records. That a few "super-intellectuals" attain publicity through heinous acts is no reason why the super-intellectual class as a whole should be condemned.

Cost of Living

The cost of living in the United States has gone down a little further. Federal reserve board figures show that it averages 65 per cent above the pre-war level. This is higher than most of us would like to see it, but remarkably low compared with the price level in other countries, showing a lower cost. Only Canada, among other important countries, shows a lower living cost. In England living expenses are 70 per cent higher than before the war; in France 266 per cent higher; in Belgium 393 per cent higher; in Italy, 412 per cent higher.

For the big majority of Americans this 35 per cent increase may be discounted, because income has risen as much as expenses. In the case of wage-earners, income as a rule has risen more than that. Which is to say that the average pay in the United States today will buy more than it ever did before of the necessities and comforts of life.

Trade in Motion

Talk of autumn dullness and hesitance evidently must be discounted. Trade is moving. Freight car loadings—an un-failing test of the volume of business being done in the country—were greater during the third week in October than in the previous record week of September, 1923.

This was not primarily a result of the big grain shipments, either. It was chiefly a loading of merchandise and miscellaneous freight, totalling 674,000 cars, which was 26,000 cars more than were ever loaded before in one week.

Grain exports are breaking records too. During four weeks of October this country shipped abroad 39,803,000 bushels of wheat. The previous record for a full month was 35,942,000 bushels in October of 1920. It bodes well for farmer, manufacturer, merchant and for business in general.

The Imbrie Incident

The Imbrie slaying appears to be a closed incident. A recent dispatch from Teheran stated that two of the murderers of Major Imbrie, the United States vice consul at Teheran, were put to death, bringing the list of those executed up to three.

The reason for the delay in the last two executions probably never will be known, but it is clear that the two were put to death only at the insistence of the American government. With object lessons of this sort before them, governments which heretofore have voiced the plea that they are powerless to prevent mob outbreaks likely will increase precautionary measures to protect the lives of nationals.

WOULD WIDEN ROAD KITTERY TO PORTLAND

Highway Com. Sargent Says Census Showed 10,000 Cars a Day Went Over Highway

The State Highway Department of Maine wants about $11,800,000 to finish the roads of the state. The most of the work to be done according to Highway Engineer Sargent is between Kittery and Portland.

Speaking of the Portland and Kittery state highway, he said that the traffic census taken there last year showed that an average of 10,000 cars per day was passing over the road, of which 600 were trucks. It was also discovered that between 30 and 40 per cent of this traffic was tourists. He believes the state highway between the two centers, which is the main artery of travel into the state, should be rebuilt much wider than at present and that arrangements should be made so that eventually in the years to come this road can be constructed to a total width of 40 feet.

NEWS OF THE NAVY AND NAVY YARDS

Added to the Stores.

Under the new ruling several items have been added to the list of permissible articles at ships' stores, including beverages, non-alcoholic; combs, small; pocket size; holders, toothbrush; hairbrush; lotions, shaving.

Can Spend More Money

Expenses in the service have been entirely changed in the new regulations. Subsistence for travel is raised from $4.50 per day to $5 per day, including meals, lodging, bath, and tips at meals and hotel. Where single meals before were limited to $1.25, now breakfast and lunch are $1.25 and dinner $2, with tips of 50 cents for the three meals. An evening meal is not permitted unless arrival at domicile or station is later than 6:30 p. m. or breakfast unless departure is before 8 or arrival at station after 8 a. m. Incidental expenses incurred on account of travel, shown to be reasonable and necessary, will be allowed. Claims must be accompanied by vouchers for hotel bills, Pullman service etc.

Deserters and Stragglers

Changes have been made in the navy regulations in rewards for deserters which are as follows:

When a person has been absent without authority for more than 24 hours and has not communicated with his commanding officer, giving reasons for his absence, a reward not exceeding $25 shall be offered by the commanding officer for the delivery of the straggler into the custody of the naval authorities at such place and within such time as may be prescribed in general or specific instructions. When a person is declared a deserter a reward not exceeding $50 shall be offered for the apprehension and delivery of such deserter into the custody of naval authorities, under such instructions as may be issued by the bureau of navigation, or, in the case of a marine, by the major general commandant. Paragraph (3) is the same as the last part of the former 1697.

Upon receipt of notice of the apprehension of a straggler or deserter such notice shall be published to the crew of the vessel or marine barracks from which the man is absent. The office of the Judge Advocate General will furnish to the vessel or station from which a man deserted notice of the final action in each case where a trial by general court martial ordered by the department was held for an offense involving unauthorized absence, and such notice shall be published to the crew. In cases where the trial was ordered by authority other than the department, such notice will be furnished by the convening authority.

Cannot be Signed by Clerk

No return, voucher, requisition, or letter or other official communication addressed to, or intended for, any bureau of the Navy Department or the general accounting office shall be signed by any chief pay clerk, pay clerk, or acting pay clerk for an officer of the supply corps with whom he is assigned to duty, except when that officer is on authorized leave of absence, physically incapacitated, or otherwise unable to sign official papers pertaining to the business of his office. No enlisted man shall sign an official paper for any officer of the supply corps under any circumstances except where necessary to establish a chain of responsibility for property in transit.

Final Tests off Rockland

The scout cruiser Cincinnati has left quarantine at New York for Rockland, Me., where the ship will have her final speed trials during the next two weeks off the Maine coast. Members of a special navy trial board, with engineers of the Todd Shipyards Corporation boarded the cruiser at Rockland today. Engineers predict that the Cincinnati will eclipse all speed records and do better than 35 knots an hour.

Wants to Enjoin Wilbur

Wm. Baldwin Shearer of New York on Monday made an effort to prevent the navy from using the dismantled battleship Washington as a target. Shearer claims the ship cost $36,000,000 and as a taxpayer he asks the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia for an injunction against Secretary Wilbur. He also asserted the action would violate the arms treaty. The navy recently announced plans for disposing of the hulk of the Washington.

Six mechanists were required today by the Industrial Dept. for work in the electrical shop.

One Gone

The submarine S-12 which was scheduled to leave the yard on Saturday along with the S-13, sailed at noon today for New London. The last named ship is still tied up on the water front.

Lots of Smoke, Not Much Fire

A slight fire was discovered just before noon today in a room used by prisoners next to the watchman's quarters at the ferry landing. No one was in the building at the time. The fire was confined to some old rope and other material stored near the roof. An alarm from box 25 was sounded but the fire department's services were not really needed, the fire having been extinguished by the watchman and others before the apparatus arrived.

3 Complete Enlistment

The following men from the marine guard of the yard were discharged today at the expiration of their enlistment: Corporal John H. Newman, Kittery, private C. G. H. Metcalf, Allston, Mass., private Guy E. Swartwout, Orono, N. Y.

Admiral a Guest

Rear Admiral L. R. deSteigner, Commandant of Charlestown yard and the First Naval District who made an inspection of the local yard on Monday remained over for the exercises in connection with the dedication of the Maine Memorial at Kittery today. He also attended the banquet given in the yard by the state following the dedication.

HALE TO PUSH CRUISER BILL

Maine Senator Will Try to Have Fight Authorized

Washington, Nov. 11.—Senator Hale of Maine, republican chairman of the senate naval affairs committee, called on the President today and announced that he will take up immediately after congress meets the bill authorizing new construction by the navy department. This measure was lost in the closing hours of the last session.

President Coolidge had indicated to "Big Navy" senators that he would approve the measure, even though it called for an expenditure of $150,000,000.

The bill authorized the construction of eight new cruisers costing $11,000,000 each. It was designed to strengthen the navy in light cruisers, which is considered a vital weakness, and to approximate the naval strength of Great Britain.

It was said, following Senator Hale's conference with the President, that the administration's attitude regarding the bill is unchanged. Although senators little can be accomplished aside from the appropriation bills, the navy measure may be one of the extra bills of legislation of the short session.

WILL NOT CLOSE THE SCHOOLS

Manchester, Nov. 11.—Dr. Streeter, city health officer, stated today that the scarlet fever situation here did not warrant the closing of the schools despite the fact that the fever has increased during the past three weeks. Speaking about the situation, Dr. Streeter said in his opinion as a health officer he did not deem conditions there alarming.

MANCHESTER GAME IS OFF

(By Associated Press)
Brookline, Mass., Nov. 11.—The board of health of this city today issued a final ruling forbidding the football game this coming Saturday afternoon between the Brookline high school team of Manchester, N. H., on account of the epidemic of scarlet fever in that city.

MRS. HARDING IS NEAR DEATH

(By Associated Press)
Marion, Ohio, Nov. 11.—Mrs. Warren G. Harding was reported as hovering between life and death today by her physician, Dr. Sawyer, who reported her condition unchanged from yesterday. Little hope was held for her recovery.

GET THE SCORE IN FULL

With the telephone ringing the entire afternoon and a good portion of the evening on Saturday last at the Herald office it is not unusual for the football information man at the office to get some queer queries and perhaps give some answers a bit too technical for those seeking information regarding the great college sport as was the case on Saturday when Harvard was struggling for emergency over Princeton. Hundreds called up asking what the score was and quickly received it 34-0, but in a number of cases the party would "hang up" before it was made known to them that Harvard was the team registering the zero.

The fans took it for granted that the crimson must have won. This occurrence happened several times in the middle of the game when Princeton had a substantial lead. It is better in these days of modern football not to jump too quickly at conclusions. The dopsters are not always right when it comes to football results this year and the season isn't over yet. Get the score in full.

TESTIFIES IN VERMONT CASE

(By Associated Press)

Burlington Vt. Nov. 11.—Engine White on the stand today for the state in the case against William McCready and Gordon Wells charged with grand larceny for breaking into St. Mary's Cathedral here last August and taking vestments, told how he was with the trio on the night of the break and how Meyers, who is a Klan organizer, made a statement that there were explosives in the basement of the church. He added that McCready and Wells called Meyers a liar and that the former then agreed to go with them to the church to investigate. James Wood a detective, was also on the stand today and testified to the capture of Meyers, a few days after the church pillage. Meyers has already pleaded guilty to the charge of grand larceny.

MAN INJURED IN CRASH DIES

East Hampstead, Nov. 11.—Walter M. Clough, 31, a World War veteran, died yesterday from injuries received in an automobile accident Saturday night. Perley Haggett, also injured in the accident, is believed to be recovering.

Lights from an approaching machine blinded Clough, resulting in his driving his machine into a stone wall. The car upset, pinning both men beneath it and then caught fire. Clough, who was rendered unconscious, came to, pulled himself from beneath the flaming wreckage and then pulled Haggett out. A passing automobile took the two injured men to a nearby physician.

Clough is survived by a widow and three children, Maurice, Marshall and George; his parents and three sisters.

FINE ADDRESSES AT DEDICATION

Frank G. Harrington of Augusta, Me., president of the Maine senate, delivered a fine address at the dedication exercises at Kittery this morning, saying in part:

"It is good for men amid the turmoil and confusion of life, in the midst of the puzzling problems which confront the individual and the nation, to pause on occasion in order to give thought to the emotions that memory of the past arouses in them and to pledge anew their consecration and devotion to God and country, and to arouse and thicken into fruitful action their love for their fellows. The exercises of this hour would signify more than the mere placing of a memorial to those men from Maine who were in service by land and sea and sky; they would mean more than a merited tribute to those who gave their lives in that service. Cold indeed are those, and to be pitied, whose hearts are not stirred within them as they recall the achievements of the soldiers and sailors from Maine. Unfading are those whose eyes are not dimmed with tears when they remember the suffering and agony and death endured by them.

"By this enduring memorial which is to be erected we pay deserved and well-earned honor to the memory of those who are gone and to those who are still living and serving, but merely to do this is not enough; it is not enough that our hearts are tender and that our emotions are stirred. Unless we here dedicate and consecrate ourselves anew to carry on the work which their unselfish efforts have left unfinished, we will have failed to fully interpret the full solemnity of the hour and the lesson of personal obligation resting on us as individuals.

"Well may our hearts echo the prayer that never again may the world be devastated by a great war. Well may we here resolve that, in so far as our influence can help to shape the destinies of this nation, we shall strive to bring about a spirit of common brotherhood, tolerance and mutual service, which lead to peace, never to war. God grant that never again may the people of this state or any state gather to dedicate a memorial for service in a future war, glorious as that service might be; but if ever again in the course of events it shall become necessary for this nation to take its place on the battle front as the champion of great principles, may the same spirit of self-sacrifice, the same courage, the same devotion and the same loyalty be in those who may follow in their footsteps as was in those in whose memory we gather here today. This nation does not desire war and all can agree that every possible effort should be made to lead the human mind away from thoughts of carnage and bloodshed, but may the time never come when the American people shall fail to keep alive the same sturdy, virile and unyielding courage that their ancestors had before them. Peace needs the same type of courage, the same spirit of self-sacrifice, the same devotion, the same loyalty that is demanded in the din and smoke of battle."

Col Albert Bellveor of Rumford, Commander of the American Legion in Maine also gave an inspiring speech. In opening his remarks he said:

"It is fitting indeed that Maine should on this memorable day, pause to pay its tribute to the dead heroes of the World War, by dedicating this memorial to the memory of Maine men who cheerfully gave their lives in the service of their country. We of the American Legion cherish and respect their memory and take pride in their sacrifices. We faithfully promise to allow no one to forget or minimize the patriotic service which resulted in death for some and permanent disability to others. We appreciate the invitation tendered by the committee in charge of these dedication exercises and assure them and the people generally that the American Legion will always keep sacred its principles and live up to its ideals. When hundreds of thousands of men organize together for God and Country, there need be no fear for our institutions; when men whose patriotism cannot be questioned pledge themselves for their God and their country to the extent of again offering their lives, if necessary, then we need give but little heed or attention to those who seek to overthrow what you and I looked upon as sacred.

"Armistice day is now observed as a holiday in every town and hamlet in this country. On this day we recall the young men who left their homes, relatives and friends for foreign countries to fight and defeat an enemy who, if successful, would have made a German province of these United States; it is a day of reflection and meditation, a day of Thanksgiving. It is a day on which we might well take account of stock and find out if we, as American citizens are fulfilling the duties and obligations which the privilege of citizenship entails. You and I enjoy privileges but many of us are too apt to forget the responsibilities which are ours.

LEGION FAVORS STRONG NAVY

Chicago, Nov. 11.—A law to place all material and man-power of the Nation at the disposal of the Government and to eliminate war profiteering, as peace insurance, today was declared by James A. Drain, national commander of the American Legion, to be the aim of the Legion. He spoke at a luncheon at which Capt. Lowell H. Smith, commander of the world fight, and Lieut. Leslie Arnold were guests of the Advertising Men's Post of the Legion.

A reasonable amount of preparedness, including the maintenance of the Navy at full strength of the four-power agreement—"not full strength on paper, but on the water and in the air"—are sought by the Legion, the commander asserted.

RULES CLAUSE DOES NOT APPLY

(By Associated Press)
Baltimore, Nov. 11.—In the trial of Rep. John Philip Hill in the U. S. court here today for alleged violation of the Volstead Act Judge Soper ruled that the one-half of the one percent clause in the Volstead law does not apply to beverages made in the home for home consumption.

SUPERIOR COURT WILL RESUME ON WEDNESDAY

The jury in the October session of superior court reported this morning at 10 o'clock but shortly after was excused until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. Sickness of one of the lawyers is the contributory cause to the postponement of a case which would have probably been started today.

From all appearances this session of superior court will consist mostly of cases other than criminal, though it is expected that a few criminal cases will come up for trial before the session is terminated.

There is a murder case that will be tried at this session which will attract considerable interest when it gets under way. Presumably this case will be tried sometime during the first part of the month of December, all depending on the length of time required to complete civil suits and other cases.

The murder case referred to is the one in which two Exeter policemen were shot and killed by an elderly Exeter man, who is at present lodged in the county jail awaiting trial.

The present session has been curtailed a bit by reason of a few prisoners awaiting trial having pleaded guilty to indictments and sentenced by Judge Marble.

It is expected that, with the reporting of the jury on Wednesday morning, the cases booked for jury trial will be steadily disposed of between now and Christmas, with a possibility of some being settled out of court.

The jury reported Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock and was excused until this morning at 10 o'clock. Seven new jurors were sworn in by the clerk of court yesterday afternoon, these taking the places of other jurors excused from duty.

Judge Marble, presiding at the session which is expected to last several weeks, discussed with the lawyers present the assignment of cases scheduled for trial by jury. This resulted in the booking of cases for various dates.

It is expected that the naturalization books will be ready on Wednesday. They will be in the custody of the clerk of the superior court.

NOTES OF THE DEDICATION

The U. S. Marines under command of Capt. Russell participated in the exercises. When Governor Baxter arose to speak they presented arms and the band gave him the music due his station.

On the reviewing stand were Commandant D. E. Dismukes and staff, Mrs. Dismukes, Capt. T. C. Owens and Mrs. Owens, Capt. W. M. Hunt and Mrs. Hunt, with the commandant's aid, Lieut. Comdr. Branham and Mrs. Branham, Col. South, Col. Wise and Comdr. Warfield.

Wallingford Post, American Legion of Kittery participated in the observance and made a fine appearance in the line of march.

At 1:35 o'clock the party headed by Governor Baxter, the Marines and Legion, marched to the navy yard where the luncheon was served.

The corner stone was laid by Governor Baxter and members of his council and in it was placed a copper box with the state seal and various interesting records written with India ink so that they may be preserved for all time.

It was a big day for Kittery and everything went off in fine style.

SEEK SLAYERS OF GUNMAN

(By Associated Press)
Chicago, Nov. 11.—Gang rivalry, beer runners' feuds, gambling troubles and a fight of lieutenants of rival gangs over a woman, were theories followed by police today in their search for the three men who yesterday shot and killed Dion O'Bannon, notorious gunman and gangster, in his flower shop. While they sought Mike Carrozo, labor leader, and Margaret Collins, pretty blonde, involved in a fight eight months ago with Louis Altiers and John Bates, alleged lieutenants of O'Bannon, the police took precautions to prevent more killings in reprisal.

All known enemies of O'Bannon, questioned after the shooting, had been released today when they satisfied investigators they had no connection with it, but as police inquiries progressed it was disclosed that more than three men who fled after firing six bullets into O'Bannon, may have been involved in the slaying. "Morgan Collins, police chief, declared the death of O'Bannon rid Chicago of 'its arch criminal. I don't doubt that O'Bannon was responsible for at least 21 murders in this city," he said.

ARMISTICE DAY IN BOSTON QUIET

(By Associated Press)
Boston, Nov. 11.—Although there was no official observance of the 6th anniversary of Armistice Day scheduled in Boston informal exercises were arranged by patriotic organizations, especially those of World War veterans. The chief ceremony planned was that held on Boston Common under the auspices of the Military Order of The World War. Detachments from local units of the army and navy and marine corps were assigned to assist in the observance.

TRIPLE WEDDING IN ONE FAMILY

(By Associated Press)
Shirley, Mass., Nov. 11.—A triple wedding was the feature of the Armistice Day observance here today. Emma, Alfred and Wilfred Quinty, sister and brothers, children of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Quinty, took life partners in St. Anthony's church. Anthony J. Lucas, a soldier from Fort Banks, married Emma, Alfred Quinty married Dorothy Chamberlin of Leominster and Wilfred Quinty married Bertha E. Pierce of Barre, Vt. A reception followed at the Quinty home.

ROLL CALL UNDER WAY

The annual roll call for the American Red Cross is under way. At a meeting of the workers yesterday much enthusiasm was displayed on the part of those present. Chairman Fred M. Sise of the local Red Cross Chapter addressed the meeting and urged the greatest possible co-operation and effort on the part of those who are doing the canvassing and upon those who will be canvassed.

The American Red Cross stands out pre-eminently as the world's greatest humanitarian organization. It is always ready for emergency. There isn't a taxpayer in Portsmouth who does not believe in supporting and keeping at high efficiency such city departments as the police and fire departments.

These departments are maintained in order that they may be ready for any emergency.

Chairman Frank W. Randall of the drive committee was very enthusiastic this morning about the outcome of the local effort in behalf of the Red Cross. He stated that Portsmouth never failed to do its duty. Certainly Portsmouth duty was never more clearly defined, nor never was it called upon to render financial assistance in a more important cause.

PUBLIC WORKS BOARD MEETS

The Board of Public Works held its regular meeting last evening with Collins, Hasty and Mayor Dexter present. A petition from the Portsmouth Motor Mart, Inc., to construct a driveway into its property at No. 253 Middle street and to remove a tree from the highway in connection with the work was referred to the superintendent under the usual restrictions.

A petition from the Portsmouth Gas Co. to open Highland street to run a gas service to No. 70, was granted under the usual restrictions.

A communication from F. P. Macchemore relating to water bill for 95 Washington street, was referred to superintendent to investigate and report.

The bid of C. M. Driscoll of $892 to retube the Sherburne Springs boiler, using charcoal iron tubes, tested to 1000 lbs. to the square inch, bead tubes on both end, clean boiler on inside, caulk all rivets, laps and seams in and near patch on first girth seam, changing fusible plug on rear head and test boiler at a pressure satisfactory to the superintendent of the Board of Public Works, was accepted.

The insurance on aqueduct supplies of every description—water meters, hydrants, pipes, piping and valves, and on all tools, implements and apparatus, office furniture and furnishings of every description contained in the Board of Public Works building on Court street was renewed with the John Sise Insurance Co.

MANY FIRES SINCE OCT. 1

Concord, Nov. 11.—State Forester John H. Foster announces that his office has records of 177 forest fires in this state since Oct. 1, which have burned over 2463 acres of woodland in 167 towns.

Of these fires 97 were checked, largely through the watchfulness of fire wardens, before they had burned over an acre of land. Only three extended over more than 200 acres.

It is definitely shown that 31 were caused by throwing cigarette stubs from automobiles. The states forester wants a law passed requiring the equipment of automobiles with receptacles for cigar and cigarette butts and matches.

The drought situation throughout the state continues serious and the ban against entering woodlands is still in force in all counties except Coos.

EXETER AND ANDOVER IN BATTLE NOV. 15

43rd Meeting Between Big Preparatory Schools Next Saturday

Exeter, Nov. 11.—The 43rd meeting between Exeter and Andover will be the goal that both big preparatory schools will work for this week end at Andover on the new football field there.

Exeter at the start of the season looked like a sure winner, but injuries have put out several of the Granite State academy's stars and, even if they are able to play, they may not be at their best after the long layoff.

Harlan "Hoot" Mills, who was showing real form at quarterback and rated as the best since "Fido" Kempton, was put out by injuries at Princeton. He has not been playing much since.

Ireland O'Donnell of Newton, who was one of the best drop kickers and close to Mills at quarter, also has been out so long that he may not be in his old form.

Walter Pine of Natick, who has been out since the Yale Freshmen game, stands a show of getting back at his old position at halfback in the Andover game.

Exeter's showing in the Worcester game last week was far from satisfactory, but Coach Blake has a much improved eleven and the undergraduates are looking forward to a victory over Andover.

Andover will send a lighter eleven against Exeter's heavyweights and will resort to open football, with Billhardt, Sandberg and Frigard doing the fast work.

Coach Daly at Andover has been using nearly the same eleven all season.

If Trainer Sam Murch can get the Exeter cripples into as good condition as they were at the start of the season, the New Hampshire boys will play a whirlwind game against Andover.

The eleven started out strong, winning over Dartmouth, Yale and Harvard freshmen, but fell badly at Princeton, in which game 10 of their players were forced to the sidelines by injuries.

Since the defeat there they lost to Worcester Academy, 15-6, but this week will be a strenuous one and additional coaches are likely to appear on Plimpton field to brace the eleven for the annual game with their rivals.

KITTERY

Kittery, Nov. 11.—The Pythian Sisters Sewing Circle will hold an all day session with Mrs. Jessie Johnson this coming Thursday. Be prepared to take quilts, taking needle and thimble.

The Swastika club enjoyed a pleasant time at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar J. Hatch in South Eliot recently. The husbands of the members were royally entertained. A splendid chicken dinner with all the fixings was served at 6:30 p. m. and the evening passed in a social way.

Get ready for your Christmas photographs by having a free sitting at Anderson's Studio during the week of Nov. 10th.

All members of the American Legion Auxiliary are asked to meet at Armory hall, Echo street, this evening. Passaconaway Council Degree of Pocomantas meets this evening at Red Men's hall.

The next quarterly mass meeting of the Kittery Community Service association will be held in Fraternal hall, Wallingford Square, on Thursday, Nov. 20, at 7:30 p. m. Reports and debates on budget for 1926, system of disbursing town appropriations, valuation of property and tax rate.

The committee on Old Home Week, of which John Thaxter is chairman and Mrs. Charles E. Woods secretary, will make an interesting report on what has been accomplished on the plans for this coming event. Miss Lillian Walker is chairman of entertainment and started preparations for a theatrical performance by local talent (the best yet) to be given this winter for the purpose of raising funds for Old Home Week. The book committee will report progress. Frank E. Cotehall will speak on the Fort McClary park development. The public is invited to the meeting is open to all members and non-members. If all members could come we wouldn't have a hall big enough to hold them. We are proud of our membership of 425 but there is no reason why every man and woman should not belong to this association and take an active part in our community work. Here we meet on the level, on equal terms. As our constitution says "We are non-political, non-sectarian and non-exclusive."

Because of this it is the most powerful instrument through which a united community may express itself and work together for the common good. Music will be provided by an excellent orchestra from the Second M. E. church. The Grange choir will sing a few of the old-time Maine songs and the Boy Scouts will act as ushers. A beautiful pledge ceremony to our flag and to our town is a feature during the opening exercises.

LINCOLN MAN HAS FRACTURED SKULL

North Woodstock, Nov. 11.—John Welch of Lincoln is at the Plymouth hospital suffering from a fractured skull and other injuries, received early Sunday morning when his automobile skidded on the Daniel Webster highway about a quarter of a mile below this town and plunged through a fence to the river 40 feet below.

The car was smashed beyond repair. A passenger in the car with Welch escaped serious injury and was able to summon help and have Welch taken to the hospital.

Little can be learned of the affair, according to officials of this town. The two men were speeding north on their way to Lincoln some time between midnight and 1:30 o'clock Sunday morning.

Marks on the road are said to indicate that their car skidded, then dove across the highway diagonally and pitched into the ravine after tearing a hole in the heavy fence.

This Teacher Used an "Electric Chair"

H. T. Opsahl, science instructor in the Danversville (Minn.) High School, had his own ideas about maintaining classroom discipline. He got a common office chair and equipped it with Tesla coil. It was so arranged that no spark would cause a severe shock to a boy strapped in it. The punishment was intended to consist almost entirely of mental suspense. But one pupil, Earl Tennison, claims one leg was slightly burned. As a result, Opsahl was arrested on an assault charge. The chair is shown in the above picture and an artist has painted in an imaginary subject.

Grindell-Matthews' New Death Ray

This is the first picture of the much-talked-of death ray invented by Grindell Matthews, British scientist. It is being tested during the night on the Island of Flattholme, off the coast of France. Its lethal beams, according to its inventor, are like lightning. They can destroy airplanes and dirigibles in flight and even wipe out entire armies. None can dodge it, once it is directed at them, for the ray is invisible. If it proves successful and is adopted by some government it may revolutionize even the most modern methods of warfare.

CONSERVATIVE ON ALL POINTS

People of Nation Not Much Inclined to Make Radical Changes

(By Associated Press)
Chicago, Nov. 11.—Conservatism in last Tuesday's general election was not confined to the voting for candidates for office, but also was carried into the referendum on special propositions and proposed amendments to state constitutions, the majority of which were defeated.

Initiative measures involving taxation, parochial schools, bond issues for improvements, war veterans' bonuses and scores of other questions were submitted to the voters of the different states for acceptance or rejection. In a few cases the ultimate fate of the measure was in doubt because of the incomplete count.

Proposed measures in Washington and Michigan which would have required all public children to attend none but public schools were decisively defeated.

Montana and Colorado rejected plans for compensating World War veterans, while a proposal to pay a bonus to veterans of wars other than that of 1917 met a similar fate in Kansas. Oregon, on the other hand, approved such a measure with the added provision that women veterans of the World War also were to be compensated. Maryland adopted an amendment providing for a bonus.

Florida, one of several states to vote upon a state income tax, decided by overwhelming majority to prohibit forever the levying of an inheritance or income tax upon residents of the state.

Several states voted upon large bond issues, the greatest of these, one providing for the sale of $500,000,000 in bonds to enable California to take over and operate a huge water-power project, being defeated. Illinois voted $100,000,000 for hard roads, while Kentucky refused to approve a $15,000,000 bond issue, part of which was to have gone into road building and the remainder into state institutional funds and to pay off an old state debt.

A move to approve ratification of the child labor amendment to the Federal Constitution met with overwhelming defeat in a Massachusetts referendum.

How Pains in Side and Dragging Down Feelings Were Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Massena, N. Y.—"I had terrible pains in both my sides and a dragging-down feeling that affected me so that I could hardly walk, and I got run-down. A friend who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advised me to try it and I have taken it with the best results. I do my housework and also some outdoor work on the farm. The Vegetable Compound has given me back my health and I can't praise it enough. I am perfectly willing that you should use these facts if my letter will help other women who still suffer."—Mrs. DELBERT BUSH, R. F. D. 1, Massena, N. Y.

The spirit of helpfulness shown in the letters we are constantly publishing is what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will do. Your troubles are the same as theirs. Isn't it reasonable to expect the same results?

DERRY BARN BURNS WITH $10,000 LOSS

Derry, Nov. 10.—A large barn on what is known as the late Charles W. Bachelor estate, was burned Saturday with a loss of more than $10,000. Twenty-three cows were taken from the flames, the last three with some difficulty because of the fire's headway.

Although the building was of modern construction, having cement floors and tie-ups and steel stanchions, efforts to save the structure were fruitless. The house, however, which was attached to the barn by an ell was not damaged. More than 50 men centered their activities on the ell and dragged it to one side in order to prevent the flames from spreading.

Included in the loss were 50 tons of hay, farming machinery and tools, an auto, truck, and many bushels of grain. The barn was only partly covered by insurance.

About 15 years ago the Bachelor estate was purchased by the late Charles M. Floyd, former governor of New Hampshire. Later it was sold to George Rogers, a local milkman, the present owner. Fire is believed to have started near the milk room where pasteurization is carried on.

BRITISH TEST INVENTION FOR DRYING FARM CROPS

Oxford.—An invention is being tried by the Institute of Agricultural Engineers at Oxford University, which, if developed will remove one of the chief causes for grumbling on the part of British farmers and revolutionize English harvesting methods.

The invention is a new process for drying farm crops, a very necessary thing in the damp English climate. The plan is to cut the crop and make it into circular stacks of from 10 to 20 tons weight around a hollow central chamber. Heated air will then be blown over it by powerful fans. Haystacks have been dried by this means in ten hours without fermentation.

It is asserted that the new process will allow a harvest to proceed in any weather, save field labor, give a greater corn yield, make straw better, and facilitate plowing.

EQUALLY TO BLAME FOR FOREST FIRES

Man and lightning share equal responsibility in the fact that forest fires in California were more destructive during the past year than in any other state, according to a report issued by the United States forest service.

More fires were started in national forests of California than in any year since 1917. In a total of 1367 fires nearly 50 per cent were attributed to lightning, the rest to human carelessness. And of the man-caused fires, tobacco smokers started 358, or 59 per cent and campers 117, or 16 per cent. Railroad, brushburners, lumbering and incendiarism accounted for the rest.

Eighty-six per cent of all the California fires in national forests were extinguished by forest rangers and their co-operators before more than 10 acres had been covered by flames. Forest officers obtained convictions against 120 violators of state and federal fire laws.

"The 'tailor-made' cigarette and the unextinguished match continue to be the greatest enemies of our forests," said District Forester Paul G. Redington. "It is surprising also to note the number of fires started by careless campers."

A Smart Costume

A FEW interesting touches rescue this frock from the commonplace. They are the wide, lace-trimmed inner collar and cuffs; and the large, square buttons, of black with white circles mounted on a strip of white braid that trim the waist and skirt and the pleated section inserted in the front. The material is black moire. The smart little hat is of white felt.

Chats with your GAS man

DELIVERING gas in rubber or leather bags may sound like a myth today but that was the practice in a certain American city in 1850. There were no gas mains in those days and persons who wanted gas took their bags to an engineer in town and paid him a nice sum for filling them.

Returning to their homes they attached the bags to pipes and then weighted the bags so that gas was forced through the pipes to the appliances. It didn't matter what the cost was—gas service was considered cheap at any price.

Today the business of supplying gas fuel to the homes of America has become a necessity—and the cost of such service is one of the smallest items in the housewife's budget.

DAWES CAREER IS FOUNDED ON BUSINESS SKILL

The achievements that won Charles G. Dawes national reputation were three in number, but they had one common quality, that of bringing order out of disorganization. As chief of the general purchasing board of the United States army in France in 1917-1918 he handled the supplies of the American forces; as first director of the American budget he brought efficiency in financial affairs; as chairman of the "Dawes committee" he assisted in formulating the famous plan for clearing up after-war political difficulties.

In each position he sought after the solution that a business man, confronted with business problems, would have evolved. He brought business co-ordination in France when he obtained a unified system of supply for the Allied armies. In America he established a central bureau for the supervision of governmental expenditures. In Europe again, he, with the committee that took his name, brought forth a plan for European reconstruction that is acclaimed both by the allied nations and Germany alike.

"General" Dawes is no soldier in the shoulder-strap and spauld sense of the word. In fact on occasion he has repudiated the military title. He is a business man by instinct and training. In testimony before a Senate investigating committee in 1914 he declared that "the history of this war will be written around achievement—not shoulder-strap." He was popular throughout the army, however, even among the strictest disciplinarians.

Mr. Dawes was born in Marietta, O., Aug. 27, 1865. His father, Gen. Rufus R. Dawes, served in the Civil war. Mr. Dawes was graduated from Marietta College and took his law degree from the Cincinnati Law school in 1886. He began business life while still a young man as chief engineer of a small railroad in Ohio. While member of a law firm in Lincoln, Neb., where he subsequently moved, he became interested in gas plants and public utilities throughout the west, developing large holdings. In subsequent years he acted as head of gas companies in Wisconsin and Illinois. His interest in politics was marked. After the McKinley campaign in 1896 he was named Controller of the Currency of the United States. In 1902 he organized the Central Trust company of Illinois.

In August, 1917, Mr. Dawes went to France as a colonel in the 17th Engineers, and began his duties there in the field of transportation. Soon after he became the general purchasing agent for the American forces. Following the armistice he acted on the American Liquidation commission for several months.

Hardly had he returned to the United States when he was called to testify before the Senatorial committee investigating the handling of the war. The former general clashed with this committee from the outset, holding that it was seeking political advantages for a party, or—as he expressed it—"It was looking for flaws in the brilliant record of the army."

In politics Mr. Dawes gained recognition as a political strategist as far back as 1896 when he succeeded in a campaign to have the Illinois delegation to the Republican convention instructed for William McKinley. The floor of the state convention at Springfield, Ill., saw his victory for McKinley and "gold." After the National election his ability as a campaign manager made him a member of the executive committee of the Republican National committee of which Mark Hanna was chairman. Mr. Dawes' success as leader of the international committee producing the "Dawes plan" won for him the Republican nomination for the vice presidency, to which he has now been elected.

DO NOT FORGET

Do not forget now war has ceased
What our brave lads have done;
Do not forget the vacant chair
In homes that gold stars won.
Think of the lads who went away
Strong, youthful and carefree;
How changed were they when they returned
From war across the sea.

These young men when they went away
Had health and fine physique,
But many came home from the war
Crippled and sick and weak.
Men who in muddy trenches fought
From duty, they never swerved.
Do not forget to give them all
Honors and praise deserved.

Praises bestow in grateful thoughts
Of lads who come no more.
Forget the notes in memory give
To them now strife is o'er.
Remember men who met their fate
In the unbounded air,
And those who crossed to "No Man's land",
Prayed death and perils there.

Forget not men who sailed the seas,
Fearless they risked their life,
These men do not forget the war,
The horrors of that strife.
The guns are silent, and in homes
Voices are still today.
And fathers mourn for sons who died
In France, so far away.

Today the gold star mothers see
The graves, with a white cross
And scarlet poppies blooming there
That breezes sway and toss.
Nature and God do not forget,
God speaks to each sad one
And says: "To their own borders
Your children again shall come."
CLARA A. LYNN.

ALASKAN SCHOOL MAINTAINED

Up in Alaska there is a school which is maintained by the Government for the purpose of furnishing education for one family, and the children of that family fill the room to capacity. The head, and front of this family is Nikaly, who was a chief of the tribe known as the "Knicks" but the old tribal form of existence among the Indians has died out and Nikaly is without any throne, but he has accumulated around him a fair-sized tribe of his own flesh and blood.

Some years ago he located with his family, which was not so large at that time, a petition to the Government to send a teacher there to take care of the matter of educating his family.

After looking into the matter with great care the Government representative reported that as the entire settlement consisted exclusively of the Indian and his offspring, that it was not called upon to maintain a school at that remote point.

"When you have a town with 15 scholars," said the Government agent, "we will send you a teacher." Not so long ago the Indian wrote to the agent that the town now had a population of 17, with 15 scholars, and to send a teacher. When the teacher arrived it was to discover that the entire 15 were the children of Nikaly. However, the whole family, including the father and mother, turned out to help build the schoolhouse and the institution of learning has been put regularly into operation.—Los Angeles Times.

Find Kollogg's Bran "Easy way to avoid constipation" after suffering for years

Constipation is a dangerous disease. It can lead to many others. Twenty years' suffering with constipation undetermined this man's health. Kollogg's Bran restored it—as it has done for thousands. This is what he says:

"Gentlemen:

"After eating Kollogg's Bran twice a day for one month I find it not only an 'Easy Way to Avoid Constipation,' but an easy and most pleasant way to cure it. I have been troubled with constipation . . . for more than twenty years . . . after adopting the milk and bran diet I find my stomach greatly improved, and find it a specific for constipation. . . . I deem it only justice that you should know what your product has done for me, and what it is capable of doing for others."

(The original of this letter is on file at the Kollogg Company, Battle Creek, Mich.)

FIND KITTERY WOMAN'S CAR IN BACK YARD

Machine Thought to Have Been Stolen and Then Abandoned

Fred Fogg, a resident of the Blackwater road near Somersworth upon arising early one morning recently, found a Ford touring car in his yard bearing the number plate Maine 38-103. The car has remained there since and no person has called to claim it up to Monday morning.

An examination of the auto by Mr. Fogg resulted in the finding of a driver's license bearing the name of Mary Fish of Kittery. Efforts are being made to locate the possible owner.

It is believed that the machine was stolen and that the thief became frightened and abandoned it. The water had been drawn from the radiator to prevent its freezing.

M. Schwartz is in Boston today on business.

START ACTIVE WORK AT PINES RED CROSS DRIVE STARTED TODAY
Two men began work at the Pines on Monday clearing up in preparation for winter sports. There is a lot of grass to be either cut or burned and the bushes and high grass about the ponds are being taken away so that when the ponds reach flood, height they will not stick through the ice.
The slide will be materially lengthened. The chute will be extended another 100 feet or more and the entire surface of the run in the lower part of the field smoothed up. This will be done with a tractor and plow and then harrowed, so that there will be no repetition of the spills at the bottom of the slide. Where the slide is extended into the field beyond the end of the present field, permission has been obtained from the owner to cut away all the underbrush and alders and other small trees, leaving a clear run up to the high land where the toboggan will lose its speed. The work will be rushed so as to have it ready before the ground freezes and snow falls.

TONIGHT
The people of Kittery, especially the automobile owners, are hoping that the great many distinguished Maine guests who were in Kittery today for the dedication of the memorial, took good notice of the roads leading from the Memorial bridge. If they don't impress them as being the worse in the state then their eyesight is bad.

ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION
Star Lodge of Odd Ladies
Observe Thirty-First Birthday
Star Lodge of Odd Ladies observed its 31st anniversary at its regular meeting Monday evening at N. E. O. P. hall. At the time of its organization there were 51 charter members and of these nine are still members of this lodge, which was organized Nov. 13, 1893, these being: Mrs. Belle French, Mrs. Lottie Littlefield, Mrs. Annie Holt, Miss Bertha Martin, Mrs. Della Sides, Mrs. Hannah Jackson, Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, Miss Ida Blaisdell and Mrs. Emma Jenkins.
After the routine business was transacted a history of the order through New England was given by Mrs. Della Sides and Mrs. Lottie Littlefield. A dialogue entitled "Cheering Up the Sick," given by Mrs. Mary Bridie and Mrs. Lillian Marshall, songs by the Ladies' Colored (?) Quartette, selections by a male (?) quartette and readings by Mrs. Emma Cook made up a most enjoyable program. The quartette was comprised of members of the lodge and their costumes and singing created much merriment. Refreshments of assorted cake, ice cream and coffee were served by Mrs. Rachel Emery, Mrs. Annie Mason and Mrs. Henrietta Jones.
The affair was in general charge of Mrs. Mildred Bickford, noble lady of the order.
